Welcome to February at IKEA

This February is about boosting the energy in your everyday life. We're celebrating diversity and finding new ways of coordinating. With a big chunk of humour, the launch combines joyful colours with bold and graphic patterns inspired from 1960s.

We're introducing a large selection of textiles, from quilt covers and towels to curtains and motorised roller blinds. Even the younger family members can delight in a baby soft toy collection and a textile collection for teens. On the storage front, there are chests of drawers, fabric boxes and accessories for an existing wardrobe system. The look of the launch continues into the kitchen, where graphic door fronts create a personalised touch. We're also launching some pendant lamps and exciting rugs for a design statement. Among the smaller products, a new stationery series invites creativity to the desk with its colourful, playful style. Overall, it's hard not to smile.

SOMMARASTER quilt cover

Cosy up and disappear in the retro-styled flowers of SOMMARASTER quilt cover. Inspired by the Swedish 1960s, the pattern is designed by Emma Hagman from Studio Kelkka and brings a feeling of spring to the bedroom. The quilt cover is made from 100% cotton grown with care. All our cotton products, whether a towel or a bed sheet, are made from more sustainable cotton. We believe that you shouldn't have to compromise on price, quality, design, function or sustainability when making a choice.

These storage chameleons can also be added as extra storage to an already existing solution. Available in black-blue, the lower chest of drawers even works as a storage bench to sit on.

SANDVILAN hand & bath towels

Embrace the retro trend this season and go flower power in the bathroom, by the pool or beach. SANDVILAN towels come in three sizes and are woven in jacquard – making the towels thick, soft and highly absorbent.

They're made from 100% cotton grown with care, meaning all our cotton comes from more sustainable sources. So you can feel good about having contributed to the well-being of cotton farmers and their families, and a less polluted world as all cotton at IKEA is grown with less water, fewer fertilisers and pesticides while increasing profit margins for the farmers.

KLAPPA baby toy collection

Look, touch, push, lift — the new KLAPPA baby toy collection is designed to help babies develop their senses through colours, shapes, touch and sound. For example, there's a baby gym promoting eye-hand coordination as the baby grabs for the hanging ladybird or stretches towards a mushroom. Every product in the series has a different theme, like the baby gym has a forest world, the play mat is like a seabed and the mobile shows planets in space. The designer Malin Unnborn wanted to find specific details that could create curiosity and lead to play:

"For example, for the picture book and the ball I used colours with strong contrasts and fabrics with different structures, such as glossy and matte, soft and rough."

On the play mat, Malin made shark fins and other details that stick out just enough for small and curious fingers to pinch them. Other products include a comfort blanket with a soft toy and a musical toy caterpillar.

As much as IKEA loves colourful products for children, we do not allow dyes that are known (or even suspected) to be carcinogenic or allergenic, e.g. disperse dye, direct dye, basic dye or azo dyes. So parents can rest assured that our new KLAPPA baby toy collection is safe, soft and stimulating on a baby's journey of discovery.
