MAMMUT CLIMBING 2021

USER-FRIENDLY, SUSTAINABLE, SAFE

Climbing ropes have been the DNA of the traditional Swiss brand since 1862. More than 150 years later, climbing has become a popular sport and is constantly attracting new enthusiasts who do not yet have a clear understanding of the equipment and materials, who are very conscious of the environment and whose safety is a top priority for Mammut. This development will not stop even in the newly determined Olympic climbing year 2021. Reason enough to raise Mammut's climbing range to a new level with innovative technologies and new sustainable products in fresh looks.

SAFE ALSO WORKS SUSTAINABLY

NEW ROPES FOR ENVIRONMENTALLY FRIENDLY ROCK CLIMBING

As part of our WE CARE strategy, we strive to minimize the ecological footprint of our climbing products and their production processes in order to protect natural resources. For various reasons, the production of outdoor products inevitably leads to the accumulation of material leftovers, which are usually stored or thrown away - a problem that is widely spread in the industry. Mammut counteracts the waste of resources and uses these leftovers to produce high quality products.

For the first time, Mammut makes environmentally friendly rock climbing possible: for example with the 9.5 Crag We Care Classic rope. The new We Care products are the result of active waste reduction and give unused material a new purpose, whereby safety and sustainability are not contradictory. With this unique solution, we are able to reduce the ecological footprint in the production of climbing products while providing proven Mammut quality and safety.

9.5 Crag We Care Classic

The 9.5 Crag We Care Classic Rope is designed for sports and classic climbing. Mammut enables eco-friendly rock climbing by reducing the ecological footprint of rope production. The sheath of the single rope is made from residual yarn left over from changes between different colors. Previously disposed of, this yarn is a high-quality, brand-new raw material. Therefore, all 9.5 Crag We Care Classic single ropes fully comply with Mammut's high quality standards. They are perfect examples of responsible use of resources and are at the same time unique, as each rope has a unique pattern.
