INTRODUCING: HOW DO YOU SLEEP AT NIGHT?

New ABC podcast explores life in the face of judgement

Nobody thinks they're a bad person, right? We all have moral codes we live by.

Hosted by Hack's Sarah McVeigh, the new ABC podcast How Do You Sleep At Night? is all about people who face judgement for the things they do, big or small.

In this podcast, you'll slip on the shoes of a big tobacco lobbyist, a pokies billionaire, abortion clinic protesters, a stock market manipulator, a killer and big game hunters.

"Honestly I struggled to see how someone could justify killing a giraffe!" says McVeigh.

"But in this series, I wanted to test the limits of my empathy.

"Whether or not you agree with the actions of the people you'll meet, I hope you enjoy seeing the world from someone else's perspective!"

"This series is utterly compelling in the way it makes the listener view the world through a different prism from their own. The characters you'll meet certainly make you question not only their morals but your own," says Kellie Riordan, Manager of ABC Audio Studios.
