Greg Simon will present Sennheiser Spectera: the world's first wideband, bidirectional digital wireless ecosystem, in an educational session on December 13.

As part of its contribution, Sennheiser will feature a dedicated session led by Greg Simon, Manager, Regional Technical Application Engineering for the Americas. Attendees can join his presentation, "Sennheiser Presents - Spectera," on Saturday, Dec. 13, from 2:00 to 3:30 p.m. EST. Additionally, Sennheiser will host multiple product giveaways throughout the conference, including the HD 490 PRO PLUS Headphones, HD 280 PRO Headphones, and Profile Streaming Sets.

Karrie Keyes, Executive Director of SoundGirls.Org and Monitor Engineer for Pearl Jam and Eddie Vedder, emphasized the significance of the sponsorship.

"Sennheiser's commitment to SoundGirls is a testament to their belief in the power of diverse voices in audio. Together, we're shaping the future of sound," Keyes said.

"Sennheiser's partnership with SoundGirls is more than just sponsorship; it's a commitment to empowering the next generation of women in audio." Dawn Birr, Strategic Project Manager of Pro Audio Business Transformation at Sennheiser and a longtime member of the SoundGirls community, commented on the importance of the partnership. "SoundGirls is a vital organization for education, networking and mentorship within our industry," Birr said. "We are proud to partner with them and Women in Vinyl to provide resources that directly support their mission. This conference is an incredible platform for professionals to share knowledge, and we are excited to have Greg Simon represent Sennheiser with a session on the latest innovation in wireless audio, Spectera."
