Welcome to April at IKEA

This April launch is about making room for better habits. It's about making time to live a more conscious and caring life regarding sustainability. The materials are natural and the colours span from neutral, earthy tones to different shades of blue.

We're welcoming furniture made in rattan, lamps and plant pots in bamboo and rugs made of wool. These materials give a natural feeling and are easily mixed with other styles in a home. Textiles are big this launch, from quilt covers to cushion covers, as well as textile collections for a baby's nursery and children's bedroom. To go with all the lovely patterned bedlinen, there are beds including a traditional metal bed frame, an extendable children's bed and a classic baby cradle. The bathroom also gets an update with new storage furniture, a shower curtain and towels in a style that's made to last.

Overall, this month is about creating a home that works today and tomorrow. The launch strives to create a balance between leading a modern life and being in touch with nature. It embraces slow living — living with intent.

ULRIKSBERG armchair

Enjoy comfort in the light, airy style of ULRIKSBERG armchair. With a handwoven rattan backrest and seat combined with a metal underframe, each armchair is unique. The designers Andreas Fredriksson, Jonas Hultqvist and Willy Chong describe their thoughts on working with this sustainable material:

“We like working with natural fibres like rattan and bamboo – living and renewable materials that provide great opportunities to create unique products. The most enjoyable part of this project was to use these materials in new and innovative ways. We wanted to make furniture in natural fibres, often combined with metal underframes, that is modern, gives an airy feeling, is easy to move and comes in flat packages. Better for the environment and easier to take home and enjoy.”

The fact that ULRIKSBERG armchair comes flat packed is unique in the market and makes it easy to invite nature into your home.

Rattan is a naturally occurring and fast-growing vine from the palm tree family. It's a living material with a will of its own and has to be boiled and sun-dried before it can be tamed into different shapes that we can sit on, rest in or decorate our homes with. This is where the weavers come in:

"We wouldn't be able to make authentic rattan products without them. They have skills that can't be copied by machines," says Andreas Fredrikson, who has designed some of our rattan furniture together with the artisans who help to shape the rattan vines to functional products.

The cooperation means you can have unique and hand-made furniture in your own home – created by man and nature together.

HEMNES bathroom furniture

When starting to develop HEMNES bathroom series, IKEA invited people who normally don't work with product development to co-create with us and find new and unexpected solutions. What do you need in the bathroom to make it more convenient and better organised? This was the question that sparked the development of four new functions: a storage bench, an open wash-stand, a wall shelf and a high cabinet with glass doors.

Although developed for the bathroom, the pieces can fit in the hallway or across the home. The beauty of the HEMNES series is that it will never feel outdated.

KNIXHULT lamps

Create a natural, handmade style with the beautiful KNIXHULT lamps made in bamboo. When developing these lamps, we wanted to strive for as low an environmental footprint as possible. The lamps' design has been adapted to also make use of the darker types of bamboo, which are usually thrown away. In fact, this has meant the usage of raw material has gone up from 20% to 65%. The result is lamps with warmth and character — available as either a floor, pendant or table lamp.

It's also good to know that, like all children's lighting at IKEA, TROLLBO meets or exceeds the highest international standards when it comes to quality and safety for children. For example, there are no sharp edges, small parts, accessible light sources or power sources. TROLLBO pendant lamp creates a bright, safe and creative environment for children.

SOLGUL cradle

Gently rocking a baby to sleep is an old trick used by parents. When we developed SOLGUL cradle, we were inspired by older cradles while we, of course, followed the latest safety requirements. A crucial thing for a safe cradle is that it leans perfectly when you rock it and that it can't tip over. That's why our product developer Anna Carme and her colleagues started the entire project by developing the right curve for the cradle's rockers.

"We looked at old cradles for inspiration when developing a suitable design for the rockers. Then we refined the design by testing the movements and tilt of the cradle," says Anna.

Scientific studies have shown in recent years that babies sleep best and safest in their own beds, but with SOLGUL it's still possible to have your child near you during the night.

"We adjusted the size and height of the cradle so that you can keep it close to your own bed and easily stretch out an arm if your child wakes up during the night," says Anna. "It's often enough with a little bit of rocking for the child to fall back to sleep."

PH159540 SOLGUL cradle with foam mattress 79,90 703.624.27

SOLGUL cradle has been developed with the right curve for the cradle's rockers so it leans perfectly and can't tip over. Small fittings below the rockers also let you put the cradle in a fixed position.
