REPA at Venditalia: Where Technical Know-How Meets Operational Efficiency

The partner behind faster repairs and smoother operations connects with vending operators in Rimini

Cesena, May 21, 2026

The latest edition of Venditalia confirmed the strong interest of vending operators for REPA, recognized across Europe and beyond for its ability to combine technical know-how with practical, business-driven solutions for the vending sector.

A comprehensive range for every maintenance need

Over the three days of the show, numerous visitors from across Europe, LATAM, and the US stopped at the REPA booth to explore its extensive portfolio, including payments systems, maintenance kits, and all spare parts for vending and super automatic machines, OCS systems, as well as all the after-sales services offered by the leading distributor.

Speed of delivery and high-stock availability

Discussions with leading OEMs have highlighted their interest in a partner with strong technical capabilities in the vending sector, able to support spare parts management while enabling their long-term growth. By stocking original spare parts for OEMs partnering with REPA - to name just one of the services offered - REPA enables them to reduce storage and logistics costs, allowing manufacturers to focus on the design and production of their equipment. The conversations held with customers during the exhibition confirmed what vending operators value most: speed of delivery, high-stock availability, competitiveness and responsiveness in handling technical queries and order management.

A reliable partner in an evolving global landscape

“Another defining feature of this Venditalia edition was the strong presence of Chinese OEMs, who increased their presence, with a mix of companies already established in the European market and several completely new players entering the scene” commented Tobias Lange, Group Director Vending at REPA. “This development reflects the internationalization of the OEM landscape. In this context, REPA, with its network of fulfillment centers and his worldwide sales organization is the right service solutions partner, ready to simplify operations for customers and manufacturers in a complex and diversified environment.”
