The eagerly-anticipated tribute to one of Australian radio's most-loved presenters, Eoin Cameron.

Eoin Cameron's Breakfast program was consistently top-rating for the time slot. Since Eoin Cameron's passing there has been many requests for a tribute CD and this recording contains a number of classic Cammo moments as well as his interviews on popular ABC Radio program Conversations with Richard Fidler and Who Are You? with Geoff Hutchison.

"He genuinely cared for the thousands of dedicated listeners who woke up with him every morning, filling their heads with his hilarious anecdotes of family life aka The War Office, Taj the psycho spaniel or his love of Eurovision and all things tacky and trailer park-esque. His taste in music was legendarily hideous ('Day Trip to Bangor' anybody?). And no-one who listened to Eoin for more than a week could escape his enduring love for Dusty Springfield. I still remember the day he interviewed another favourite, Dolly Parton, and her opening remark: 'Eee-Yon, what sort of mother would name her son that?' He didn't miss a beat and came right back with: 'Dah-leigh, why she must be the same sort of daft mamma as yours, I reckon.' She laughed uproariously and was instantly charmed." – Deborah Leavitt, Former Manager, ABC Radio Perth

The exclusive tribute to legendary radio presenter, Eoin Cameron.

Includes some of the most memorable moments from Cameron's career as a presenter as well as excerpts from interviews with ABC's Richard Fidler.

Eoin Cameron was a much-loved Australian breakfast host and radio personality with a career spanning almost 50 years. His last 14 years, until his retirement, were as breakfast presenter for 720 ABC Perth, where he consistently topped the ratings.
