Indaco Named One of the Country's Best New Restaurants in Modern Luxury's July/August Issues

CHARLESTON, SC—July 8, 2014—National restaurant critic and writer John Mariani named Charleston, SC based Indaco Restaurant one of the country's best new restaurants in several of Modern Luxury magazine's July/August city issues. Joining sixteen national restaurants such as Alta in San Francisco, Juniper & Ivy in San Diego, Rolf and Daughters in Nashville, and Gato in New York City, Indaco is recognized for filling "a niche in the city for fine, modern Italian food" by Mariani. Some of the highlights from the menu include the plump agnolotti with beef short rib, the pizzas utilizing seasonal and unusual toppings and the raw snapper crudo. The piece on Best New Restaurants is featured in the Atlantan, Houston, DC, Angeleno (LA), Chicago, and Riveria (San Diego) issues. A luxury regional guide for an upscale demographic, Modern Luxury publishes over a dozen magazines in cities across the country covering topics such as top restaurants, shopping, beauty, fashion and art.

"We are honored that John Mariani has once again selected one of our restaurants in a list as impressive as the one for Modern Luxury," stated Steve Palmer, managing partner of The Indigo Road. "To be listed among so many we respect immensely is a true honor. It's especially exciting to have Mariani, an expert in Italian cuisine, praise Chef Michael Perez's talent in such a national format."
