Welcome to October at IKEA

The October look is inspired by the Dutch master painters and sets the mood for the darker season. The style is traditional and the colours include neutrals and warm, earthy colours such as rusty red and dark greens. Tulips take centre stage, inspiring us as patterns and colour combinations.

Among the product highlights, there is a big emphasis on storage. We are launching two furniture families for sleep and storage in a traditional style that can be used across the home. The children's room sees a new system with storage and sleep solutions that can grow with the child, from baby to teen. Other news includes a dining table in a traditional style, baskets in natural fibres, frying pans made of carbon steel and a mug made of surplus glass. A new water-saving tap steps up the design factor in the bathroom, while helping to save on water-bills. These are just some of the highlights in a launch that feels nostalgic, taking us back to another day and age.

KRISTINELUND mirror

Reflections in rattan

Put up a mirror that is more than just functional. The oval KRISTINELUND mirror is made in the natural fibre rattan that gives character and warmth. It's decorative and reflects light, making the room look brighter and bigger.

Being handmade by skilled artisans in collaboration with our IKEA designers, no two KRISTINELUND mirrors are exactly the same.

HAUGA series

A traditional series across the home

We are now welcoming an entirely new versatile family to our range. They're designed with attention to details and alignment between the units, to make them look neat when put together.

The series is versatile, as you can create small or big solutions depending on the space and needs. The units have a unique top shelf with framed sides that are designed to optimise and create extra storage space by allowing items to be stored there. The timeless, traditional design makes the style of HAUGA one to love throughout the home and for year after year – all at great value for money.

The tap is made of sturdy, high-quality materials giving it a long life, and enabling us to offer a 10-year guarantee on it. ### Dining with traditions

A dinner table is the heart of the home. Our new traditional DANDERYD dining table can create a homely feeling, while being sturdy and long-lasting for everyday use. It's been produced with a modern technique where the table legs use metal tubes that have been formed into a traditional shape without wasting any material. ## SMÅSTAD system

A furniture family made for children

This month sees the launch of our new system for sleep and storage in the children's room. SMÅSTAD has been developed with the child's need and perspective as the starting point, giving the child possibilities to play and interact with the storage and develop own skills thanks to clever age-specific accessories and functionalities. For example, new pull-out units make storage easier and more accessible, also for small children. The system has been especially developed for children with rounded corners and soft closing hinges. Like all children's products at IKEA, the pieces have been emissions tested and colours have been chemically tested.

The solutions that include a loft bed, changing table/desk, wardrobes, drawers and shelves can grow with the child thanks to the many possibilities to mix and match the different fronts. Add a different personality through a variety of handles and hooks in the range. Use it for a safe baby's nursery or a teen's bedroom full of attitude, SMÅSTAD gives the options to get creative with storage.

FYXNÄS lamps

Space lighting

A lamp from outer space has now landed in the IKEA range. That is what comes to mind when trying to describe FYXNÄS lamps and their surprising design in shape and colour. The lamp shade uses a double layered knitted textile that gives the light some character, especially with a suitable deco bulb. There's a turquoise floor and table lamp available, and also a dark red table lamp – all are placed on metal tripod legs, which are detachable so the lamp can be transported in a flat package. Get ready for lift-off!

ÅLANDSROT cushion

Cushions with a story

The floral pattern on ÅLANDSROT cushion is a design that has been plucked from a treasure trove of textiles, tucked away in The Musée de l'Impression sur Étoffes (The Museum of Printed Textiles) in Mulhouse, France. The museum was founded in the 19th century and houses a wealth of inspiration for traditional textiles to suit our modern world.

The pattern on ÅLANDSROT cushion with its beautiful red tulips set against a dark blue background is from 1889. We have made it into a classic jacquard woven cushion that adds texture on a bed, armchair or sofa. It's made from 40% cotton from more sustainable sources and 60% recycled polyester. By using recycled polyester in the fabric, we consume less new raw materials and lower our environmental impact.

Designed to create jobs

The Jordan River Foundation (JRF) is a Jordanian non-profit, non-governmental organisation established in 1995 and chaired by Her Majesty Queen Rania Al Abdullah. JRF has initiated numerous socioeconomic projects for women, youth and children.

Since the refugee crisis began in 2011, Jordan, a country of only 9 million people with high rates of unemployment, has taken on great responsibility hosting many of those who seek refuge. In 2017, IKEA decided to collaborate with JRF, which has resulted in the organisation employing over 250 new artisans, Syrian refugees alongside Jordanians, producing products sold at IKEA.

VARDAGEN frying pans

Welcoming carbon steel frying pans

Cooking lovers can now delight in a new series of frying pans made in carbon steel. VARDAGEN frying pans consist of both carbon and steel, giving similar qualities to cast iron but being lighter weight and faster at reacting to temperature changes. Carbon steel frying pans spread heat evenly and also release a healthy amount of iron into the food. VARDAGEN frying pans work well on all types of hobs, you can even pop them in the oven, as the handle is full metal.

You can serve the dishes straight in the frying pans that range from 13 to 28 cm in diameter. These are pans to enjoy for many years to come, as they have a 25-year guarantee. Just remember to season the pan from time to time to build up a natural non-stick surface for cooking.

A more sustainable mug

Food always look delicious served on the dark black, glossy BACKIG dinnerware. The series made from tempered glass now sees the addition of a mug. The glass used in BACKIG is made with surplus glass from other productions, which have been melted together. This makes the series very resistant to chipping and gives it the glossy dark surface.

"I love the moments when you meet with friends and family around the dinner table – cook together, set the table, help each other and share stories about the day or life. I would be very happy if UPPLAGA, with its traditional, timeless design and different features, can encourage more moments like these."

LUSTIGKURRE baskets

Invite nature home

With our new natural fibre LUSTIGKURRE series of baskets, IKEA continues to explore the potential of natural fibres by introducing a new material – nipa palm stalk fibre. The long, soft fibre isn't only new to IKEA, we're the first global retailer to include it in our range.

"It's one of the most sustainable materials there is. Since it's a living material it results in unique products – which is another plus."

Hao Nguyen Van, Material and Technology Engineer

LUSTIGKURRE series includes baskets and a magazine stand in different designs using materials like nipa palm, jute, seagrass, bamboo and water hyacinth. With the series, customers can enjoy unique products made of a sustainable material that also benefits the communities where the material is sourced.

Introducing nipa palm stalk

Nipa palm is a plant with soft fibres that are perfect for hand-woven products. Today the locals use the palm leaves for making roofs, but the stalks have no commercial value. They're left to decay, unless they're removed to make space for new leaves. By utilising the stalks, the farmers get an additional income and an incentive to plant even more of the fast-growing palms. Something that also protects the soil from saltwater intrusion.

"It's a win-win. We can offer handmade, unique products made of a sustainable material. And at the same time be sure that the production also benefits the communities where the material is sourced,"

Hao Nguyen Van, Material and Technology Engineer at IKEA of Sweden.
