

Colorado's largest residential real estate office celebrates six-figure remodel and expansion in record-breaking year

Keller Williams Realty DTC doubles down on its successful tradition-meets-technology model in Denver's highly competitive real estate market

Monday, July 17, 2017 — In this era of discount real estate schemes, Keller Williams Realty DTC is reasserting its commitment to the traditional Realtor model by putting its money where its mouth is. "This business is first and foremost about personal relationships, and we believe the best Realtors come from a supportive and collaborative work setting," said Pam Kiker, Operating Principal at KW-DTC.

The Centennial-based office is home to more than 500 Realtors, more than any other in the state. The company just completed a 31,000 square foot remodel and expansion project to honor and support those agents. The new market center features beautiful finishes, artwork, a state-of-the-art training room and work spaces in a variety of designs including office suites with mountain views, stand-up spaces and individual work stations.

This Friday the office will host a Grand Re-Opening celebration to kick off the second half of an already record-breaking year. "Our agents are flourishing, and it isn't just because the market is up. KW-DTC outpaced the entire Denver market by 14% in Closed Units in June, 10% in New Listings taken and 27% in Listings Sold! The energy, participation and sharing of resources is making a massive difference in our agents'
