Conversation pit by Jonas Van Put

About

Jonas Van Put (1989) is an interior architect and furniture designer. He is intrigued by nature and landscapes, and everything that derives from it.

He is fascinated by the background processes that take place in natural as well as artificial circumstances on different scales.

The journey across those scales is vital for the choice of a design language. For each and every design he pays attention to the relation with its public, and questions social interactions among people. The starting point is one, imaginary story that leads to the following design process to be dreamy and light-hearted as well.

Collab

After I discovered Jonas his first design piece called 'The Observer' in the garden of Art Gallery EMELY, we joined forces creating a playful extraterrestrial sculpture for WCD2015.

Due to this unique and inspirational collaboration, one year later we are creating a conversation pit together.

Work

Available in 3 different fabrics.
